In 8 patients with extensive gastric ulcer an investigation was performed into the extent of local absorption of urokinase using by the method of 'autoperfusion' (blind capillary test). The mean value of absorption of urokinase in the stomach wall, i.e. the net local absorption, amounted to 2.93 +/- 1.02 mg/15 min. a fall in the absorption of urokinase in the gastric wall up to the 30th minute after perfusion with 40 units of urokinase and in the 48th hour after the perfusion up to the 4th hour following perfusion with 60 units of urokinase. The calculation of the absorption of urokinase suggests a marked local absorption from the blood to the gastric wall.Q: Unable to use variables from an object I am unable to use variables returned from a separate function.
