Differences in Photoshop Versions The newer versions of Photoshop can perform quite a bit more than the older versions. For example, Photoshop CS5 includes Auto-Align, which enables you to align layer edges by picking the edges of an object, and then Auto-Align will rotate and/or resize the image to put that object into the correct position within the document. You can also set how wide an image should be, and then the program will automatically resize the image so that the full width of the canvas is used. Image-editing software like Adobe Photoshop has been a staple of professional digital artists for a long time. But for small and even large businesses, Photoshop is one of the most affordable options out there. People use Photoshop to make changes to photos and artwork, and its robust set of tools enable users to create thousands of different effects, turning a regular picture into a work of art. But it does not offer the features of PS CC 2014 software, which I use in similar industries. In my personal experience, I take a lot of color and quality screenshots in comparison to the older versions, as well as updating back to the older versions when I want to be sure I am not losing any artistic bells and whistles. However, to understand what Photoshop can offer for us and the industry, we need to look at the different versions of Photoshop and how they function. Adobe Photoshop CS6 is the most recent version, but its feature set is similar to the older version. Other versions in this Photoshop Series: Adobe Photoshop CS5: If you want to get started with a powerful photo-editing program, Adobe Photoshop CS5 is a great program. That was the first version of Photoshop to utilize a raster image editing system. Adobe Photoshop CS3: The first version of Photoshop to be released for the Mac, Adobe Photoshop CS3 features some of the most notable features available.

Q: Javascript : How do I get default value from a field I have multiple fields with the same name and default value in a form and I want to know how to see the current value of that field.. example: So my question is how can I see which one is the default value of the form fields.. A: If you want to get only the default value, you can try using.value, like this: alert($("[name=name]").filter(":selected").value); If you want to get all the default values, then use.map: var defaultValues = $("[name=name]").map(function () { return $(this).filter(":selected").value; }).get(); var defaults = Array.prototype.slice.call(arguments, 0); defaults = defaults.concat(defaultValues); You would then call it like this: alert(defaults.join(", ")); In both cases, you'd set the name to one of the inputs using the "name" attribute in HTML. Q: jQuery click function to uncheck all checkboxes I have a list of checkboxes and on click of a button, I would like to change the background of all the checkboxes to green and uncheck all the options.
