During the gameplay tests, the AI engine was seen running the integration of the new “HyperMotion” player models, while gameplay setups were controlled by the human player. “We’re very excited about the changes FIFA 22 will bring to the game, both on the pitch and off the pitch,” explained EA’s senior producer Jonathan Mintz. “With the ‘HyperMotion’ technology, we have used the most advanced motion capture data to make athletes in FIFA stand out from the rest of the field on the pitch. We’re also excited to be able to showcase the true athleticism of real life stars, such as Ronaldo and Messi, with the inclusion of player models that aren’t yet available in FIFA. “We’re also very pleased with the increased accuracy, speed and responsiveness of FIFA’s physics engine. This will allow us to provide more accurate and realistic player reactions to ball and player movements, allowing you to master the game and watch the ball react realistically to the individual player and the play.” EA SPORTS has brought back the World Cup and made some much-anticipated improvements to the FIFA franchise for the first time in years. For the first time, FIFA will include a single player-controlled AI, allowing players to practice their ball control and gameplans with the AI coming to their aid just as in a real match. EA SPORTS’ David Rutter, lead designer on the game, explained that, “it’s a significant shift in the philosophy that we’ve taken from the FUT series and FIFA franchise, where the AI would set up a gameplan and then passively let you control the game. With the ‘HyperMotion’ technology, we have used the most advanced motion capture data to make athletes in FIFA stand out from the rest of the field on the pitch. We’re also excited to be able to showcase the true athleticism of real life stars, such as Ronaldo and Messi, with the inclusion of player models that aren’t yet available in FIFA.” MORE DETAILS FIFA 22 includes: A new “HyperMotion” Engine that connects “the pitch to the player” and adds unique player movement and reactions New Player Movement System brings a new level of fluidity and responsiveness to each player and every movement New Player Physics System that provides

In his space-age video game to a new generation, FIFA 20™ is here with the game already more authentic than ever to the real experience. Three pillars form the gameplay foundation: Football is a beautiful game This is FIFA - bigger, bolder, more powerful than ever before, with innovations that challenge accepted footballing assumptions. EA SPORTS Invitational™ A new Invitational features more teams, more competition and more entertainment through the EA SPORTS™ Play to Win Invitational. Play to Win was created to inspire teams in your community, and now it's available on the online leaderboards to allow you to compete against anyone in the world. New Career Mode In Career Mode, you're ready to take your player to the top. Go from playing local matches in small stadiums to traveling with your team to Europe, and challenging for trophies in top-flight competitions around the world. Earning FIFA Points is easy Earn FIFA Points by playing matches, participating in Training and Playlist activities, and connecting to online competitions in EA SPORTS FIFA, EA SPORTS FIFA Mobile, FIFA Ultimate Team™ and FIFA Street™. Use them to access cool rewards, including new players, rare clothing items, new stadium kits, and more. What are the new game features? Changes to the way players earn FIFA Points The current progression system limits earning points when you're at a lower level than your target level. For example, if your target level is team 45, and you're currently playing matches at team 30, you won't earn FIFA Points. You'll earn nothing. In this game, the Point threshold is now the player's overall skill level, not the skill level tied to a specific game tier. For example, when you reach the target level of an entry in the FIFA Points qualifier, you unlock that entry to earn FIFA Points for any skill level you're playing at. Even if you're just trying to reach a certain game tier, you can still earn points based on your overall skill level: If you reach FIFA 20, get into one of the tier 4 qualifiers, and then you earn FIFA Points in the tier 4 qualifiers, you earn more points based on your level than you would if you earned FIFA Points solely in the tier 4 qualifiers. Experience level now determines your player's overall skill level bc9d6d6daa

FIFA's game modes are among the most popular and accessible in sports video games. FIFA Ultimate Team™ features a deep management mode where you buy and sell players, build a dream team, play friendly games with your friends and complete daily and weekly objectives. FIFA Mobile™ takes football to a whole new level through the creation of your own soccer club with real-life owners, players, staff, team kits and your own stadium. The FIFA Interactive World Cup™ brings the FIFA franchise to life with intense real-time matches, broadcast events and more. October 2, 2017 Building on the momentum of the 2017 FIFPro Women's World Cup, we are excited to be celebrating another groundbreaking achievement by FIFA and its partners. For the first time in FIFA history, the FIFA Ultimate Team community has been granted voting rights for players in the world of football. This will enable players to have a greater say in the direction of FIFA Ultimate Team and reward those who have dedicated their lives to the game. Throughout 2017, fans will be able to use the FIFA Vote™ Portal to submit their suggestions for the FIFA Ultimate Team's in-game lineup, as well as which player should be the next You. Visit the FIFA Vote™ Portal now to get started. An achievement and a milestone, we are proud to acknowledge the #ItsNotAnAchievement campaign, which promotes the skills, careers and lives of female football players. FIFPro Women's World Cup commercial director Kristin Verdier explains, "This is a big deal because female footballers, including players and fans, have never had a say in how the game is developed and played. The incredible impact of today's FIFA 22 release, as well as our partnership with FIFA and EA SPORTS, will help to ensure this exciting change is all the more meaningful. The campaign was created by and for football fans to shine a light on the talents and contributions of female footballers, and we look forward to creating more around the world." "The FIFA Ultimate Team community is the biggest and most passionate fan base in football, and we are proud to give them a voice within the game," said Julian Gerighty, senior vice president, Ultimate Team at EA. "We are committed to supporting soccer fans in FIFA, and today's vote is another step in that direction." Building on the momentum of the 2017 FIFPro Women's World
