Tuesday, April 26, 2013 In his 1978 book, The Dawning of the Age of Aquarius, John Anthony West gives us detailed descriptions of numerous Giza pyramids. In The Riddle of the Sphinx, Christopher Dunn shares some of what West said. I want to take a page from Dunn's book and make it clearer and easier to understand. This is what West told him about Khufu's Great Pyramid: The pyramid is 92 meters (300 feet) high and sixty meters (180 feet) wide at the base (compared to Cheops's pyramid, which is 85 meters high and 52 meters wide); it is built of 4,500 blocks weighing 20,000 tons (fifteen to sixteen million pounds) each. Right: West's diagram of Khufu's Great Pyramid. The excavators decided to use all the stone and all the timber, for their pyramid seems to be of a different and greater age than Cheops's. Much of this is right, but the excavators gave it a name they never used to describe this structure at all: the Great Pyramid of Khufu, or the Pyramid of Khufu, or the Pyramid of the Falcon Throne. This is probably because of the legends about it. This is what West told him about Khufu's Great Pyramid: The cheap and mean pharaoh knows about the ancient wonders of the world. He has read about their history. He knows what he has to know. From the beginning the story has told him what he must do. His purpose is just the same as the purpose of the enchanter who tells the story of King Arthur to the knight. Khufu's pyramid is close to the sacred mountain of the late kingdom of Cush, a mountain which no one else has ever climbed. In the middle of his Pyramid is his throne. Under that is a pit filled with the bodies of forty-two of his grandsons, the last of whom is at the side, called the Falcon Throne. On the sides of the pyramid, which is triangular, the bodies of sixteen princesses are seated around the king on horses standing upright, their necks bent, their faces turned toward the east and west. Standing behind the princesses

Hijab Breastfeeding & Nursing I am a celebrity press agent who has breastfed my babies for two years now. If you have any questions about the best practices of breastfeeding in the home, feel free to contact me at any time. While I do not promote hate towards the Muslims who don't breastfeed or who take a stand against the Western ways of life, I am looking for ways to empower and educate the Western women with the option to breastfeed. I cannot emphasize enough the importance of breast milk in a baby's development. Working With The Media My services are available to you and your company and I am willing to work with you on providing articles on how to breastfeed in the home for your website or publication. I do not use a celebrity spokesperson strategy and I do not ask to be paid for my services. As a mother of two, my goal is to educate the Western women about the benefits of breastfeeding. Helping women to breastfeed is my passion, and I want to make breastfeeding in the West as normal as breastfeeding in the East. You can contact me at any time, or email me at info@breastfeedingandnursing.com About The Hijab I can't say enough about the importance of the hijab.

Breastfeeding mothers, even without the hijab, I feel that it protects and is most beneficial for the mother. My beautiful family supports me 100% in my every decision. At home, I breastfeed in the open because I have to keep the home environment as clean as possible. For all of you who care about privacy, I have a few words of advice for you: The government likes to spy on you. Last week, the American Civil Liberties Union released a report, "Top Secret America: The Hidden Government in Your Neighborhood," examining the growth of the U.S. intelligence community since the 9/11 terrorist attacks. (A California version of the report is available online.) It is an alarming read. It is also a touch misleading, as its vaunted "maps" and "data" never show the impact of that new growth in the billions of dollars spent on the effort. It does contain, however, charts and maps showing U.S. spending on military, diplomatic, economic and other covert activities. They show the White House, the Department of Defense, the Department of State, CIA, and other intelligence agencies all have big budgets. But the big winner is
