"Insurmountable is a story-based survival game that takes the core mechanics of the roguelike genre, throws it to the deep end, and dives in with all of its claws bared. I won't lie to you, the environment is bloody unforgiving. You might die a lot. Every death feels like a defeat. That's more or less the whole point." - Mike Muha, the maker of Insurmountable Storyline: The folks who run the place want you dead. Who wants you dead? "New Year's has always been a time of renewal. A time to make vows and resolve to change. No one understood that better than the Ministry of Resistance. In celebration of the new year, they wanted to lead a great crusade against the uninvited. A time to clear the world of evil and bring the New Order in." "Preparations for the New Year were underway when they were given a new command. The Ministry of Resistance was to rally the people of the world in order to fight the forces of dark evil. The Ministry was sure that victory was close at hand and that it was just a matter of time before the forces of good would take the field. It took a lot of convincing to get the Ministry to listen to reason. But with their attention finally focused, preparations have begun and the Committee must strike." "The New Year countdown is on, this is the signal. Sound the call! Rise up to aid your allies, clear the path to freedom. Execute the backup plan and usher in the New World Order. The Ministry of Resistance has chosen you. P.S. If you get this error: "The process you are attempting to run cannot be started because it is missing a required component." Check out Road to VR's YouTube channel and find out more at Drive Quality: The best thing in this game is the quality of the drift. I never thought you could make drifting such an entertaining game. The physics and handling are just amazing. The car feels super tight to the road and offers amazing feeling of speed. The race tracks are nice to explore and feel like real tracks. In addition, the surfaces are a nice mixture of slippery and rough. The graphics are the next big thing. Due to a bug in the last update of Unity 2018.1.0.1 the game was rendered in lower quality. With the latest update, the quality of the game is back to default. Gratitude: I received this game for free and it really makes my day. The game is not even close to not fun. I truly admire the effort that was put into this game and I hope to see this kind of games again in the future. Gameplay: The game is a game where you can drift. You can use a steering wheel/joystick or your fingertips/physis to drift. The game has a small time limit and you can die if you touch the ground. The game has 3 different drifting modes: Stock, Drifting and Skater. The game can also offers drifting tutorial. Besides drifting, the game offers various other modes including race, pit stop, drift mission, and speed track. The game also offer a multiplayer mode. Pros: - The handling and physics of the drifting is really top notch. You might think the drift would be a bit cumbersome

The Stick Arena is a multi-use sports and entertainment arena in Calgary, Alberta. The arena is located in the south-east corner of the city, in the suburb of Crossfield, to the northeast of downtown Calgary. It opened in September 2017 and cost $200 million CAD to build. The Stick Arena was built, operated and maintained by Calgary Sports and Entertainment Corporation (CSEC) of Calgary, Alberta and the third arena built by CSEC. Since its opening, the Stick Arena has been the final home of the Calgary Hitmen hockey franchise, the Calgary Canucks of the Western Hockey League (WHL), and the Calgary Flames' practice facility. It also hosts corporate events, concerts, family shows, graduations, conventions and exhibitions. The facility is still part of the larger Stampede Corral Complex that includes Calgary's Saddledome, Scotiabank Saddledome, McMahon Stadium and the RG Wall. History Background (2004–15) In 2004, the Saddledome underwent major redevelopment and reopened as the Scotiabank Saddledome. In 2011, the facility was sold to

AGLC and renamed as the Scotiabank Saddledome. In 2013, AGLC announced that the Scotiabank Saddledome would undergo major renovations and a rebuild in time for the 2015 Pan Am Games. The new multi-purpose arena was also to become a new home for the Calgary Flames and the Canadian women's ski team. Construction was completed on July 3, 2015 and the arena reopened on September 7, 2015 with the Canadian women's ski team's first event at the arena hosting a training camp. Minor renovations and construction During the initial 2015–16 NHL season, the Calgary Flames held all home games in the Scotiabank Saddledome until they moved to the newly constructed Copps Coliseum. The Flames chose the Saddledome as their new practice facility because of the potential to host both the men's national and women's national teams. Prior to the shift to Copps Coliseum, the men's national team was hosted at the Saddledome with the women's national team was located at WinSport facilities. In July 2016, CSEC announced that the Keeneland Stakes, which is the most prestigious meeting for Canadian Thoroughbred horse racing of the year, would be relocated from the home of the Calgary Stampede, the Alberta Motorsome, in Calgary to the new arena in 2017. The event

Enjoy!In December, the Trump administration ordered American diplomats working at the United Nations to completely stop sharing information about a person working for a U.N. agency on the grounds of national security. It did this before even being informed what the person was doing. Despite the obvious justification for this order, the State Department issued a memo to all employees on Friday continuing to prohibit them from talking to the media. The memo states that "in an effort to bolster internal security, the Department has taken a number of steps to proactively identify and mitigate risks to federal employees." Despite the bizarre explanation of this rationale, the paper was sent to every State Department employee, including press officers, security officers, and lawyers who work for the State Department. The email also reportedly states that anyone caught violating the policy could be subject to discipline and termination. Despite the memo, on Sunday two prominent U.N. diplomats spoke on the record about the matter. One, senior U.N. diplomat Robert Wood, said, "We've got a precedent that will be set," adding that the U.S. should have notified the U.N. about the incident. In response to a question about whether it was a wise decision for the U.S. to stop reporting information to the U.N., he said, "I think it was a costly decision." The other, the recently-named U.N. Ambassador Nikki Haley, at first said that she didn't know about the policy, only after being pressed on the issue repeatedly, to then say, "That's correct." It appears that only two people know exactly what the policy is, and they are U.N. officials who weren't even informed about the policy until after the fact. Who knows what could have happened if there had been more disclosure of
