The purpose of this study was to develop a data collection protocol and evaluate reliability of the balance assessment of stroke survivors, using gait measures. The study had a cross-sectional design, using 60 consecutive stroke survivors (Group 1), who were admitted to a rehabilitation hospital. A second group of 30 (Group 2) had two videotaped sessions, each 15 to 20 min apart, which were randomly assigned and used for reliability testing. The primary outcome measures for this study were a balance assessment protocol developed by our department, which was based on a matrix of 12 criteria, using at least three gait measures. The secondary outcomes included two tests of Dynamic Gait Index (DGI, Leonard et al., 1993) and a test of Berg Balance Scale (BBS, Halpern et al., 1980). Three random gait measures were obtained from each of the 60 stroke survivors. The two groups were compared with regard to reliability, sensitivity, and specificity of the balance assessment protocol and gait measures, using the kappa statistic for assessment of reliability. The mean age was 55.1 years (SD=14.8) in Group 1 and 61.7 years (SD=9.7) in Group 2. The main results showed a significant correlation between the balance assessment protocol and BBS in Group 2 ( $r=0.59$ ,  $p < 0.05$ ). Get breaking news alerts and special reports.
