In this game you are assigned to investigate a new patient named Michael, who is somehow a bit different from the others. First step is to fully explore his mental space and find out what the patient is thinking about. Are you able to recognize the thoughts and image tracks left behind by his brain?

Can you unlock the secrets of his reality? Are you able to help him even to remember his life? The NDA is ready to move deeper into Michael's mind. Together you can solve the puzzles of his thoughts. Are you able to reach the very core of him? Would you be able to even to help him find his way back? A special super-AI called CEREB (Cerebrum) will be assigned to assist you. Together you will travel deeper into his thoughts and search for answers and hints. During the adventure you can gather data by reading the tracks left behind by the patients brain. The more you get the more you can learn about the thought processes of the patient. Are you able to win his trust in order to crack his mind? Are you able to help him regain his sense of identity? Are you able to help him to get in contact with the rest of his thoughts? Are you able to travel back to his own reality? This game is set in the future. New robotic cephalopods have been developed, which are able to mimic the neural activity and processes of a human brain. This has created advanced super intelligent life forms. These entities act as a link between humans and the living creatures. There are many similarities to AI and other virtual entities. We call our human brain our 'system host' and CEREB, the main super entity, is the 'system manager'. You might wonder what CEREB's motives are, what is it doing with the patients. You will need to ask yourself the same questions. Do you agree with the behavior of CEREB? Do you support CEREB as an 'acceptable compromise'? Do you want to play this game? And what would the world be like without CEREB in it? I hope you will enjoy the game, thanks for your support!
