Stardust & Enigma Since we are certainly missing a bunch of things, I will try and stick with the lore (or lack of) and mention any new characters that appear. Nonsense, yes, nonsense. Now after searching the internet and finding little things, we learn that Pandora the Elder was being held on the Wandering Isle and had the power to grant wishes. It's not long before we are interrupted by 'criminals' and are told to escape quickly. We are unable to escape the island and have to join an escape ship sent to retrieve us and our companions We are rescued by a professor that is noted in the internet and has been sending intelligence to the ill-fated Pandora. His name is Magnus Stavos and he has said that the Elden Ring wishes to give hope to the living and that we are the last hope he has to do so. So he uses his magic to get to his lab and awaits to act after due consideration. While he is still working on it, we are warned by the goddess Fury that the Elden Ring is being watched and something that is against the rules is happening. Before we can do anything, we are intercepted by the Keeper of the Wandering Isle. A horrible decision is made. Pandora's Elder, the Keeper and the death, all in one go. Now we are being transported to the Wandering Isle and we are being punished for being near Pandora. We are initially kept in the central of the island. We are placed in a prison cell. There are countless others here. Being told that she is the one who cursed Pandora and that it was her father the elder that opened up the rift.
