Approximately 6,500 companies were using AutoCAD in 2012.[3] It was the second most-used 3D modeling software application and the third most-used computer-aided design (CAD) software application, according to Gartner. In 2015, AIG Design released the uCharm CAD 4D Builder. The uCharm 4D Builder takes the control of AutoCAD's 4D animation system into the hands of users. This technology, currently being used by AutoCAD users, produces special animations (visualizations) of their designs. AutoCAD can be used to view, create and edit 3D drawings. For example, users can create and modify the internal and external features of any building, facility or device by creating detailed 3D models in the software. They can also design appliances, furniture, machinery, and vehicles. In addition, it can be used to draw very complex mechanical parts, process assemblies of multiple parts, and create complete assemblies. It can be used to view, create and edit 2D drawings. Users can review plans and specifications, perform basic graphic editing, create parametric relationships, and more. Users can add text, dimensions, dimension styles and other drawing items. They can create and use legends, curves, splines, and more. They can move, copy and rotate objects. They can perform basic edits to figures. They can perform Boolean operations such as intersect, union, subtract and more. They can print and export drawings as image files. AutoCAD is a commercial application. However, for a low annual license fee, users can also purchase a version of the program that is open-source and licensed under the GNU GPLv3 software license. In a retrospective study of 44 patients with squamous cell carcinoma of the cervix and of its parametrial invasion, the carcinoma of the uterine cervix was irradiated with the standard external-beam therapy and cobalt-60 irradiation to the pelvic region. In 22 cases, the total dose was greater than 6,000 rds. In 38 cases, the treatment consisted of a combination of the two. The overall 5-year survival rate was 50%, and the 5-year survival rate for those with the primary lesion at a distance from the centre of the vagina of less than 2 cm was 54%. The 5-year survival rate for those with the primary lesion at a distance of more than 2 cm from the centre of the vagina was 38%. The 5-year survival rate for those with tumors located in the upper third of the vagina was 56% (16/28) and in those located in the lower third of the vagina was 27% (2/7).
